The most cited journal in the field of alternative dispute resolution presents
Those who value ADR’s contribution to the current justice system are contemplating how to expand its use. In doing so, they confront certain challenges that limit the field’s potential accessibility to wider audiences. The Ohio State Journal on Dispute Resolution has assembled a group of forward-thinking experts to explore the future of Alternative Dispute Resolution through panel discussion and to increase the potential scope of the field. The ultimate goal of the symposium is to envision the potential future of Alternative Dispute Resolution in order to increase its use and accessibility to lawyers and non-lawyers alike.

We invite you to join us in Columbus, Ohio, to participate in this valuable opportunity to explore the future of Alternative Dispute Resolution.

CLE credit is pending.
