The Faculty

TODD STARKER
Clinical Professor of Law, The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law
starker.2@osu.edu

Professor Todd Starker teaches Legal Analysis and Writing, Transactional Practice, and Accounting and Finance for Lawyers at the Moritz College of Law. Prior to joining the faculty at Moritz full time, he clerked for the Honorable Alan E. Norris of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, practiced at the international law firm of Squire Patton Boggs, and taught Appellate Advocacy at Moritz as an adjunct professor.

In his practice, Professor Starker represented clients of all sizes in corporate, real estate, financing transactions, and securities offerings, each ranging from a few hundred thousand to several billion dollars. He also represented the United States Department of the Treasury in dozens of transactions in connection with its Troubled Asset Relief Program (TARP) and Hardest Hit Fund.

Professor Starker earned a J.D. from Moritz in 2007, where he served as editor in chief of the Ohio State Law Journal; an M.B.A. from the Fisher College of Business in 1996; and a B.A. in mathematics from The Ohio State University in 1992.

KEITH HAWKINS
Professor Emeritus of Law and Society, University of Oxford, Fellow and Tutor in Law, Oriel College, University of Oxford; former Deputy Director, Centre For Socio-Legal Studies, University of Oxford.

Keith Hawkins is the Professor Emeritus of Law and Society at the University of Oxford, fellow and tutor in law at the university’s Oriel College, and the former deputy director for the university’s Centre for Socio-Legal Studies. His research interests are in the sociology of legal processes and are concerned with legal decision-making and the workings of governmental regulation in the areas of environmental control and occupational health and safety regulations. He is the author of Environment and Enforcement: Law as Last Resort.

DR. CHRISTOPHER J. WHELAN
Oxford Law Faculty Member; Associate Director, International Law Programmes, University of Oxford; Visiting Professor, Washington & Lee Law School

Christopher J. Whelan is an Oxford Law faculty member and associate director of the International Law Programmes at the University of Oxford. He is the author of Creative Accounting and the Cross-Eyed Javelin Thrower; Legal Systems and Social Systems; Military Intervention in Democratic Societies; and Small Claims Courts: A Comparative Study.
The University of Oxford-The Ohio State University Summer Law Program offers students the unique opportunity to study law from both sides of the Atlantic Ocean and to experience life in London. Students will learn about the British legal system and American legal systems through a combination of classroom, guest lectures, and excursions through Oxford and London. Excursions include trips to London, Oxford, The University of Oxford and St. John’s College, the site of the historic Oxford Round Table in 1915, and to sites of historical significance in the British Isles such as Windsor Castle, and Runnymede. Trips also will be scheduled to the Royal Shakespeare Theatre, the Houses of Parliament. Trips also will be scheduled to the Royal Shakespeare Theatre, the Houses of Parliament, and the English Inns of Court. Students typically will visit courts in England and Wales, and the United States. Students will be exposed to the British and American legal systems through a combination of classroom, guest lectures, and excursions through Oxford and London. The program houses students in private rooms at St. Anne’s College and provides them with full board—three meals a day seven days a week. Participants can choose from among four different courses offered up to ten classes toward their law degree. Program costs are subsidized by Moritz for a study abroad program of this scope, making our summer of study in Oxford an excellent value.

The University of Oxford and the Ohio State University entered into an agreement in 1987, and the University of Oxford established a law program. Through its Office for International Affairs, the University of Oxford, together with The Ohio State University, Moritz College of Law, has offered a legal studies program in Oxford since 1987. The University of Oxford and the Moritz College of Law both are members of the International Association of Law Schools, an organization of the world's leading institutions of higher education. The University of Oxford is one of Oxford's newest colleges and has an outstanding reputation for academic excellence. Its scenic grounds are located close to all of Oxford’s other colleges and libraries, as well as the city’s central shopping district. It is within a five-minute walk of the city's main shopping and entertainment district — Cornmarket Street. The Moritz College of Law and the University of Oxford have teamed up to run the Summer Law Program since 1987, educating law students on a variety of comparative and international law topics.

Excursions

The program includes numerous educational and cultural site trips. Students typically will visit courts in London (including the Old Bailey), the English Inns of Court, and the Houses of Parliament. Trips also will be scheduled to the Royal Shakespeare Theatre, St. John’s College, Windy Castle, and Runnymede. Cost is included in program tuition.

Application Information

Tuition, Fees, Room and Board

Who May Apply

Students who have completed at least one academic year in good standing at an ABA-approved law school prior to June 30 of the year they plan to participate in the Oxford Summer program may apply for our online application for admission. Graduate students in law-related fields will be considered for admission on an individual basis. An eligible applicant from an ABA-approved law school other than The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law should upload with the online application for admission a written statement from the dean or other appropriate officer at his or her law school certifying that (i) the applicant is in good academic standing and (ii) the applicant’s law school will accept the credits earned from the Oxford Summer Law Program. If your law school will not accept credits, please contact the Oxford program administrator at MoritzOxford@osu.edu before applying. The statement may also be sent via fax to 614-292-5201.

Application Process and Deadline

The application to the Oxford Summer Program is a two-step process:

1. Application for Admission to the Oxford Summer Program with The Ohio State University, Moritz College of Law: Applicants must complete and submit an online application form titled “Oxford Summer Program, Application for Admission” available at go.osu.edu/oxfordsummer. Deadline to submit the Application for Admission is March 1, 2023. Total enrollment in the program is limited and eligible applicants will be admitted into the program on a first-come, first-served basis. It is strongly recommended that all applications be made on or before March 1.

2. Application for Global Education with The Ohio State University, Office of International Affairs: Once we have reviewed your application for admission and determined that you are eligible for admission to the Oxford Summer Program, we will guide you to the next step, i.e. apply for global education through the OSU Office of International Affairs. The global education application is a simple, straightforward form that will be submitted on Student Service Center. An application fee of $50 will be charged at the time of submitting this global education application, and will only be refunded if the student withdraws before the application deadline (March 1), is not admitted to the program, or if the program is canceled. The application fee will not be applied towards the total program costs.
